ASSET FORFEITURE SOFTWARE

One System. Less Work. Less Risk.

Managing civil asset forfeiture across paper forms, spreadsheets, calendars, shared drives, and disconnected systems creates unnecessary work and risk. Omnigo brings asset records, deadlines, documents, financial activity, and reporting into one connected workflow built for law enforcement.

Connect Property, Evidence, and Case Records

Omnigo connects assets subject to forfeiture with related reports, investigations, evidence, documents, and chain-of-custody history so teams can enter information once and rely on it throughout the case. For example, when property is entered as physical evidence and designated for forfeiture, its existing information appears in the forfeiture application, allowing teams to continue managing the asset through final disposition.

Track Every Asset with Confidence

When asset information is spread across multiple records and systems, it can be difficult to know where property is, where it stands in the forfeiture process, or what needs to happen next. Omnigo tracks each asset from seizure through legal review and final disposition. Teams can see status, location, documents, deadlines, and activity in one place.

Stay Ahead of Critical Deadlines

A missed deadline can put an entire case at risk. Customizable dashboards and automated reminders help teams stay on schedule. Agencies can track notice requirements, claim periods, filing dates, court hearings, and disposition tasks in one place.

Simplify Legal Documentation

Each forfeiture case can require multiple forms and supporting documents throughout the process. Law Enforcement agencies can easily create department-specific templates, including notices provided at seizure and documents needed for litigation. When a template is selected, Omnigo automatically populates it with selected case information and records the activity in the audit history.

Strengthen Financial Accountability

Forfeiture-related financial activity must be easy to trace and explain. Omnigo keeps proceeds, distributions, expenditures, settlement amounts, federal funds, and audit records together—creating a clear record of how funds were received, distributed, and used.
